Faculty Presentation Speech: Zach Prosser is a leader among his peers. He often contributes to class discussions, frequently being the first person to speak. As a more "seasoned" student, Zach uses his life experience, including his military background to connect to a point in class or to identify with his fellow students. Finally, Zach's work ethic is impressive. He juggles a full time course load with an overnight job and a career in the Illinois National Guard. Zach has set himself apart from his fellow classmates and deserves to be recognized for his hard work and dedication.
